

TOOK TURNS

In Governing Did Leaders of Honduran Factions.

FIGHTS FOLLOWED.

Rebels Who Helped Nicaragua Overthrow Bonilla's Government Battled at Tegucigalpa.

Puerto Cortez, Honduras, April 23.—Fresh fighting has occurred in Honduras, the latest being a battle in the streets of the capital city between the factions of the victorious Honduran rebels who a few weeks ago helped Nicaragua overthrow the government. A letter which escaped the censorship and arrived here, says that the troops of the junta opened hostilities among themselves on April 8.

The fighting was brought on because of a somewhat unusual kind of government which the leaders had tried. Three of those leaders, Rosales, Bustillo and Castro, agreed to take turns as president, each serving 15 days. It developed, however, that each during his term attempted to strengthen his party by dividing up the patronage which he would have most need. Finally the friends of Policarpo Bonilla proclaimed Bustillo provisional president without any 15-day clause and the opposing factions did the same for Rosales. Then fighting began.

Troops of both sides occupied what is known as University place adjoining the palace. Rosales from a window of the presidential palace shouted to his partisans to open fire. The other side replied, merchants shut their shops and a battle was on in the principal streets of Tegucigalpa. Badly aimed bullets showered upon the houses, but caused only seven deaths.

An almost comic opera ending closed this battle when Gen. Davila, who is now provisional president, rushed among the combatants and persuaded their leaders to stop the fighting. Later another battle was started near the town, but this time the Nicaraguan invaders marched up and literally arrested all the troops of both factions. This stopped the fighting. Not a shot was fired by the Nicaraguans. Later, Davila became president with the faction leaders holding the ministerial offices.

The Nicaraguans continue to police the capital and it is safe to say that if President Davila withdraws his forces from Honduras the strongest faction will take possession and proclaim a president of its choice. The same conditions may make it necessary for the American gunboats to continue indefinitely their protection over foreign interests.

Britons Were Beaten in a Race.

Norfolk, Va., April 23.—The first of the international boat races between the crews of warships gathered off the Jamestown exposition grounds in Hampton Roads, was rowed Monday between crews from the British armored cruiser Roxburgh and the American battleships Alabama and Virginia. The lowland has been converted into a swamp, crops have been ruined and much stock has been drowned. No human lives have been lost. Residents of the homes were forced to leave their homes Sunday night, and several persons were kept in trees all night. One house floated down the Canadian river with a family inside. The occupants were rescued.

Miners Refuse to Obey New Law.

Ottawa, Ont., April 30.—Members of the government are greatly concerned over the news from the strike district of Alberta and eastern British Columbia. The fact that so many of the striking miners have refused to return to work as required of them by the new industrial disputes act, after a board of conciliation had been appointed, renders each man liable to a minimum fine of $10 a day. The question is asked, will the government prosecute each of the 3,000 miners, or will the law become a dead letter?

This announcement was made in letters to the prosecutor from Attorney Hughes Johnson, who informed him that Ellis had authorized him to make the statement. Johnson represents Mrs. Margaret K. Smith, stockholder in the People's Gas Light Co., who has attempted, in local courts, to prevent the merging of the Cleveland artificial gas companies into the gigantic combine. The Columbia concern claims control in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Kentucky suburbs. Plans have been announced for extension to other Ohio towns. They Say the Expo Is a Frost.

Columbus, O., April 30.—Most of the members of the official Ohio party returned Monday from the opening of the Jamestown exposition. A Man Followed a Girl to Kill Her.

SECOND ATTEMPT

Of a Prussian to Murder a Woman Who Refused to Marry Him Proved to be Successful.

Philadelphia, April 30.—Martha Korals, a comely Prussian girl, was shot and instantly killed here Monday by Franz Endrukut, an enraged lover, who after murdering the girl sent a bullet into his own brain, inflicting a wound from which he cannot recover.

Endrukut, who was angry because the girl would not marry him, followed her to this country from the province of Pomerania, in Rhenish Prussia, where four years ago he attempted to kill her by beating her over the head with a hatchet. After this attempt he cut his throat in an effort to end his life and after lying for four months in a hospital, according to the information given to the coroner, he was sentenced to one year and eight months' imprisonment. How he got into this country with a penal record has not been ascertained.

After the assault in Europe, Miss Korals, who was the daughter of a physician, came to Philadelphia. Endrukut, despite the refusal of the girl to marry him in his native country, followed her to America and to Philadelphia. He went to work at Cramp's shipyards and boarded in the northern section of the city. Miss Korals secured a place as a maid in the home of August Ramstein, in the southern section of the city.

Endrukut met the girl by chance in the street on Easter and endeavored to renew his attentions. He was repulsed. He followed her about and threatened to kill her unless she married him. Finally Miss Korals caused a warrant to be issued for his arrest, but at the last minute she declined to prosecute him.

Endrukut on Monday met Miss Korals and followed her from the home of her employer to a nearby bakery and again pressed his suit. The girl told him she would sooner die than marry him, whereupon he drew a revolver and sent two bullets into her brain. He then turned the weapon upon himself and sent one of the leaden missiles into his head, falling unconscious across the body of the girl. Endrukut is 33 years of age and his victim was 23.

She then shot herself in the head, dying at the Rhode Island hospital. The boy's death is expected at any time. The tragedy occurred at the home of the Holdens. THE LIKENESS ON THE CENT.

An Exception to the Rule Against Portraits of American Coins.

Coins of most of the nations bear upon them the faces of their rulers. In the United States each coin has as emblem of Liberty. The first coins struck after the formation of the federal union bore the face of George Washington. Gen. Washington disapproved of the custom and it was dropped. It has never been revived. Portraits of prominent Americans appear upon postage stamps, internal revenue stamps and paper money, but never on coins. And it has been the custom to use no portraits of living men even on the currency and the stamps. But there is an exception to the rule of no portraits on American coins. The emblem of Liberty on the one cent is the goddess in an American Indian headdress, but the face shows no characteristics of the North American aborigine. It is the face of a little girl, Sarah Longacre Keen, upon whose head was placed the feathered ornament of a Sioux Indian. Her father was an engraver and he placed his daughter's head on the coin. Sarah Longacre Keen died in Philadelphia not long ago, after having served 35 years as the secretary of her city's branch of the Methodist Women's Foreign Missionary society.

The Way of It.

Stella—Does she sew for charity? Bella—Yes, her husband will probably have to accept alms when he gets into the workhouse.

Sporting Gossip.

Joe Gans, the lightweight champion of the world, and who now announces that he will renounce all claim to the welter-weight title, of which he is the rightful holder, has some pretty good ideas on the fighting game in general. While in Milwaukee recently the negro boxer said there should be a change in the system of weighing in by all means; that boxers should not be allowed to dictate terms so as to get an opponent so weak that he could not do himself or the club which puts up the purse full justice. Gans is not the dense fellow some of the followers of the game imagine; on the contrary, he is a bright lad and has a good amount of common sense, and he can discuss sporting subjects with a knowledge that would surprise a great many. If Gans were a white boy he would be the idol of the boxing fans, but the fact that he is black makes a big difference.

In speaking of the weighing in proposition Joe said:

"That one deal at Goldfield, Nev., in which Billy Nolan compelled me to weigh three times in one day, one hour apart, and to make a weight that was out of all reason, should make club promoters and followers of the game all over the country take notice. It was an outrage, even though it might be called a clever trick on Nolan's part, for it placed the club in a position of not knowing whether I would enter the ring fit to fight or fit for a hospital. I believe the rules should be entirely revised, and instead of the old Marquis of Queensberry governing contests in this country, there should be a new set drafted for Americans and others to follow. I am not a firm believer in finish battles, although I stand ready to engage in them. I think 25 rounds should be sufficient to decide any contest."

Clarence H. Beaumont, the brilliant outfielder who has been secured by the Boston National League club, is a native of Rochester, Wis., and turned his thirtieth year last July. He played with the Fox River Valley league during 1926-7 and until Aug. 8, 1928, when he was signed by Milwaukee. His fine hitting and batting and superior base running led to his purchase by the Pittsburgh club. He was not given a regular position on the Pittsburgh club until June 26, 1929, and batted for 350 in 104 games and stole 32 bases. Since that time until last season, when he was hampered by a bad leg, he has been a mainstay of the Pittsburgh club. One of his best performances was made in 1929 when he went six times to bat and made six hits, and Aug. 6, in Philadelphia, but two weeks later, he made five hits including three triples and a double, a total of 12 bases. Twice that season he made four hits in a game.

Jiggs Donahue, now the star first sacker for the White Sox, was once a college star of great magnitude. John L. Zimmerman, prominent Democratic politician of Springfield, tells the story of Jiggs' first experience as a ball player outside the town lots of Springfield. "A decade ago," said Mr. Zimmerman, "Ohio colleges paid far less attention to the amateur standing of the members of the teams than they now do. At Wittenberg we found that we had a pretty fair team, with the exception of a catcher, for we had no one to hold the pitcher. I began to figure on what we could do. Some one told me that Jiggs would be a good man. I secured him, and while I think that he occasionally attended chapel, he certainly did no more. At any rate, he filled all the requirements, and Wittenberg had the best baseball team in her history as a result, although Jiggs at times found it exceedingly hard to conceal his identity from Wittenberg Jiggs went to Marietta, and the year following became a full fledged professional. I have followed his career with the greatest interest since that time, and I believe that I was more responsible than anyone else for bringing him out." For years Mr. Zimmerman has been a sponsor for Wittenberg athletics, but Donahue is the only real star of the first magnitude which the school has ever turned out.
